These are typically facilitated by organisations external to the site being visited and are generally known as 'third-party' cookies. They usually have a long life with several months being quite common. They are 'harvested' and 'refreshed' whenever the user visits a page where the same or a similar cookie is being used.

A third-party cookie is set when you visit a site but the domain named in the cookie sent to your computer is not the same as the website. For example, if you visit educan-algarve.com, you may also visit a different website. Even though you have visited educan-algarve.com, the cookie will be from the other site.

EXTERNAL MEDIA

We sometimes embed media content from external websites. Pages with embedded media content, for example, Facebook, Instagram or videos from YouTube, may provide cookies from these websites.

REJECTING COOKIES
